Greater Public Following in Stock Market; Forward Movement Lost Force Toward End of Week; Continental Exchanges Move Downward

SPECULATIVE operations on the Stock Exchange were on a scale last week pointing to the achievement of the ultimate goal of the professional trading community, the attraction of a public following. The confident forward movement of prices with which the week was initiated lost force, however, as the dispute between the railroads and the shippers failed of adjustment and the later trading sessions were devoted largely to a rather confusing shifting of values that imparted to the market a distinctly irregular appearance.
